

Liz Wolf

Sculptor

“Feed the Good Wolf”

The sculpture is a kachina wearing a tableta. The front of the tablet shows the good wolf and the back of the tableta shows the bad Wolf. The front of the tableta has the good wolf drinking from a pond and the surroundings are lush with greenery. The kachina holds a bowl out to feed the good wolf. The back of the tableta shows the bad wolf slinking away with his tail between his legs and the surroundings are barren land. The Kachina has turned his back to the bad wolf and offers him nothing. The story “Tale of Two Wolves” is a wonderful parable to live by. I want my sculpture to be a constant reminder to feed the good wolf.